POUGHKEEPSIE, NY (January 25, 2011) — With the economic downturn and recession plaguing many individuals and families, more people are creating a home business to work from home to increase annual income. People are enjoying the ability to work from their home and still make time for daily family activities. The allure of working independently has been an attractive option in the challenging economic times of the current recession. A community of independent business owners has been organized at www.homebiztalk.com. This important social community for businesses was created to allow business owners to network products and services to help expand market reach for the betterment of all home based business owners.

Traditionally one of the greatest ways to grow a business has been by word of mouth advertising. The creation of the Home Biz Talk network combines traditional word of mouth advertising with social media networking capabilities. This modern version of advertising includes online banner advertising, blog posts, video uploads, and networking opportunities. Business owners around the world can easily grow a new business or purchase products or services from existing businesses. This modern way of social business networking has provided an alternative way to help market the products and services of a home based business.

When entrepreneurs work from home and run a home business, using modern ways to grow sales leads, showcase products, and display expert information about a service or industry is important for a business. Blogging has become a major player in the world of product and service marketing. The ease of use and easy distribution of a blog has taken the place of most advertising methods on the Internet. Businesses can create a blog to give helpful and accurate product or service information to a potential buyer or new business client. By becoming an expert in a niche product or service, a new business can flourish and grow tremendously without the need for relying on cold selling techniques or pitching deals to grow a business.

The registration process at www.homebiztalk.com is fast, easy, and free. A home business that is serious about using the Internet to build potential partners, customers, or to provide information about products and services can easily penetrate new markets by creating an account. This important online network of business owners makes socializing and networking easy.
